

Mission and Installation Contracting Command

The U.S. Army Mission and Installation Contracting Command is a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Contracting Command. MICC Soldiers, civilians and contractors support Soldiers and their families in the continental United States and Puerto Rico by providing Army commands, installations and activities with disciplined and responsive contracting solutions and oversight. It also, on order, provides trained and deployable contracting forces in support of the Army's top priority - readiness.

Headquartered at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston, Texas, the MICC is a one-star command made up of about 1,500 military and civilian members assigned to two contracting support brigades with nine contracting battalions, two field directorate offices and 30 contracting offices that provide contracting support across the Army.

The MICC delivers materiel readiness to the warfighter by acquiring equipment, supplies and services vital to the U.S. Army mission and well-being of Soldiers and their families. The command also supports the Army's contingency and wartime missions by rapidly deploying trained and ready contingency contracting Soldiers around the world to procure goods and services in austere environments. The command's two brigades are made up of nine contracting battalions to support their respective corps or divisions to which they are aligned.

MICC-contracted services and supplies touch virtually every Soldier in the Army – from facilities support services, commercial and institutional building construction, and administrative and general management consulting services to wired telecommunication and engineering services, contracted food services, advertising and transition services. The MICC ensures America's Soldiers and their families have what they need during and after their military service.

The ACC commanding general has charged the MICC to be the most efficient and effective contracting organization the Army can afford to meet the needs of its customers and military partners.

Contracting Soldiers from across the command play a vital operational role in support of combatant commanders. MICC Soldiers and civilians serve as contingency contracting force providers in support of a number of named operations including Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Freedom's Sentinel, Operation Inherent Resolve and the NATO-led Resolute Support as well as multiple contingencies across the globe.

The MICC's primary supported activities include the U.S. Army Forces Command, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, U.S. Army North, U.S. Army Installation Management Command, U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, U.S. Army Reserve Command, U.S. Army Military District of Washington, U.S. Army Medical Command and the United States Military Academy at West Point.
